Hardinsburg, March 15.—(Special.)—Saturday morning Matthias Hook, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hook, struck a match to some powder in his father's store down close to the mill. A powder can was open close to him and an explosion took place. All of the front part of the store was blown out and a lot of the stock was ruined. Numbers of the can goods were burst. Matthias was badly burned, and for a while it was feared that his eyes were out, but the last report was that he can see, but is burned very badly. Saturday afternoon his suffering was intense. Clarence Lewis was in the store at the time and he was blown several feet. Several other men were shocked from the explosion.

DUTIES OF NAVAL BOARD ARE IN DOUBT

General Board Status Is Still Under New Law.

Washington. (Special) The status of the duties and powers of the incumbent of the newly created post of chief of operations in the navy department will be one of serious doubt and possible controversy during the administration of Secretary Daniels.

It was pointed out that any secretary desired to have the bureau of operations fill the place that the originators intended, would solve the question by appointing Admiral Dewey to the post of chief, and making the members of the general board his aides. The general board has no statutory authorization and was constituted merely by naval regulations. As a result it has no authority and on some questions little or no influence.

Mr. Daniels brought about suitable amendment of the original provision for the creation of a bureau of operations. He has given out an interview declaring that he had brought about amendment of the original provision because it would have had the effect of abolishing the general board, or at least impairing its usefulness in the matter of the preparation of war plans. The bill as passed still gives the chief of operations the duty of preparing, under the direction of the secretary, plans for war. Mr. Daniels admitted that it was most uncertain how this would work out; he wishes to have the task of preparing war plans remain with the general board, but the law now definitely puts this duty in the hands of the chief of operations.

IMPROVED RADIIUM METHOD Radium of Any Degree of Purity Can Now Be Made.

Denver. (Special) Experts in the local concentrating plant of the United States bureau of mines say they have discovered improved methods of concentrating radium ores, by which they can produce radium salts of virtually any degree of purity.

The second shipment of radium salts, valued at $14,000 toward filling the order of Dr. Howard Kelly, of the National Radium Institute of Baltimore, for ten grams, worth approximately $12,000 has been made. A third consignment valued at $20,000 will be made next week. Production will continue at the rate of about $2,400 a day until the order is filled.

SITS IN AUTO ALL NIGHT

Dispute Over Ownership of Auto Leads to Divorce.

Baltimore. (Special) After having sat steadily for sixteen hours in the automobile whose ownership she disputes with her husband, Mrs. Catherine M. Woolley permitted the car to be moved to "neutral ground" after 11 o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Woolley got into the car in the alley in the rear of her home and prevented its delivery to a purchaser to whom her husband had sold it.

All night Mrs. Woolley had heated bricks brought to her and was comfortable despite the cold weather.

She will sue for partial divorce, alimony and an adjudication of the ownership of the automobile.

GOLDEN STREAM FOR BILLY SUNDAY

Collections For the Evangelist in Philadelphia May Reach $100,000.

Philadelphia, March 15.—Tin pans heaped with envelopes containing money and loose notes, a big tin bucket loaded with cash, a purse filled with gold, and letters inclosing greenbacks and checks came to Billy Sunday in the free-will offering made by the revival tabernacle at three big meetings yesterday, while in 600 churches that are back of the campaign separate collections were taken. There also will be added to the last day offering the amounts that were received at all the week-day meetings at the tabernacle and the checks and cash received in the mail.

Exactly how much the committee expects to turn over to the evangelist in a draft could not be learned, though there is every evidence that the offering will exceed $100,000. Hundreds of business firms have been asked to contribute.

Figuring that half of the total number at the three meetings contributed bills there would be at least $20,000 taken up altogether. The church collections, if averaged at $50 each, would mean $30,000 more.

The ten collections at the meetings during last week probably yielded an average of $1,000 a meeting, making $10,000 additional, or a total for the tabernacle and churches collections of $60,000. To this must be added at least $20,000 represented by the checks and greenbacks and gold sent to him personally.

Beside the cash, the evangelist already has received gifts valued at fully $5,000.

SIXTY-TWO CANDLES.

On Cake in Honor of Mrs. Beard's Birthday Anniversary.

The sixty-second birthday anniversary of Mrs. Taylor Beard was celebrated at her home Sunday. The celebration was a family dinner which was handsome in all its appointments. The centerpiece was a magnificent cake, large enough to support sixty-two candles. On each brick of ice cream was the figure 62. Another interesting and delicious part of the menu was a Mammoth Bronze turkey from Mrs. Beard's pure-stock poultry yard.

Covers were set for the following: Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Beard, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Beard and family, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Beard, Arthur Beard, Mrs. Eliza Taylor, Miss Bettie Taylor, Morris Kitcheloe and Judge Moorman.

For Or Against.

The announcement of Hon. H. V. McChesney, former Secretary of State and Superintendent of Public Instruction, as a candidate for Governor before the Democratic primary, has created quite a stir among the politicians. He comes out squarely for the submission of State-wide prohibition to the voters of Kentucky by constitutional amendment. He also advocates that the law be inoperative for several years as to manufacturers who have a large investment so as to enable them to dispose of or change their plants and stock on hand. There is no question but that Mr. McChesney will have behind him Senator Beckham, Gen. Haley and the temperance element of the Democratic party, and that the race will be fought out with Mr. Stanley, who will represent the liberal element. It will be a close fight and the campaign will doubtless grow quite warm as the primary approaches. Mr. McChesney is a splendid campaigner and will make votes wherever he goes. The attempt to side-track the state wide question was of no avail and the old parties will have to come out either for or against the proposition.—Harrodsburg Leader.

PROF. V. O. GILBERT WOULD HEAD SCHOOL SYSTEM

Announces His Candidacy for Democratic Nomination for
SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

His Life Has Been Devoted to the Work

Professor V. O. Gilbert of Franklin, assistant state superintendent, has announced himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state superintendent of public instruction in the August primary election.

Born and reared on a farm, experienced in the hard school of poverty, he early chose teaching for a profession and for over thirty years has faithfully and continuously worked in the public school system. Teaching in country schools, serving as county superintendent, city superintendent, being for more than six years a member of the faculty of the Western Kentucky State Normal, and having been assistant state superintendent for nearly three years and a half, has given him special training for the office he seeks.

During all these years Professor Gilbert has made a thorough study of the conditions and needs of the public schools of Kentucky. His announcement follows:

"To the People of Kentucky:
"I am a candidate for the office of superintendent of public instruction, career at the age of sixteen in a country school, I have served as best I could as teacher in the rural schools, as county superintendent of schools, as city superintendent of schools, as instructor in one of our state normal schools and as assistant for over three years to the state superintendent of public instruction during the present administration.

"During this long career as a school man, I have never wavered in my devotion to the schools of my native state. It has been and will continue to be my life's work.

"I am familiar with all the duties of the office to which I aspire, and I am familiar with the entire field from actual experience.

"If I am nominated and elected, I pledge myself unreservedly to the following policies:

"First—To administer the office of state superintendent as economically as it can be done, consistent with efficiency.

"Second—To co-operate with the county superintendents of the state, and to aid them in every possible way clans and surgeons in this state, who will operate the institution on the plan followed in the best tuberculosis sanatoria in America, particularly those of the Adirondacks and of Colorado.

Arrangements for preliminary examinations and reservations for admission to the sanatorium are already being made to the Louisville Anti-Tuberculosis Association, with whom all physicians or patients are expected to communicate.

The Court of Last Resort.

Around the stove of the cross roads grocery is the real court of last resort, for it finally overrules all others. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been brought before this court in almost every cross roads grocery in this country, and has always received a favorable verdict. It is in the country where man expects to receive full value for his money that this remedy is most appreciated. Obtainable everywhere.

Right or Wrong He Is a Man.

Senator Camden will reach home about next Monday, the 15th, or sooner. He has worthily worn the mantle of the distinguished man whom Woodford has furnished to the national congress in years gone by. The Washington Star of last Thursday, speaking of Senator Camden, said that no Senator had ever accomplished more in so short a time. In a few months he has made an impression on the Senate chamber which will not soon be effaced. Even those who differed most violently from him on questions of legislation must respect him. He has at least stirred within them

"That stern joy which warriors feel in foemen worthy of their steel."

As I have already stated in these columns, I have agreed with Senator Camden most thoroughly on the Ship Purchase Bill, and have taken pleasure in endorsing him absolutely. But those who think he was right, and those who think he was wrong, can all unite most heartily in agreement on one point—right or wrong, he is a MAN!—A. A. E. in Woodford Sun.

A. V. WHITWORTH, Owner

subject to the action of the Democratic primary, August, 1915.

"This office is one of the greatest importance to the state, and every man who offers himself as a candidate for it should be able to give satisfactory evidence of fitness for the high position.

"The best evidences of fitness for any school position are devotion to the cause of education and professional training. No man is worthy of the great office of state superintendent whose life has not shown a single-mindedness of purpose in the work of education, and no man can be capable unless he has had a rich experience in the kinds of duties that prepare one for the state superintendency. These duties are of three kinds: Actual teaching in the public schools, supervision of public schools, and administration of public schools.

"By these standards I am willing to be judged, recognizing that it is the right and the duty of the people to select the candidate best qualified by nature and training for the position.

"In the first place, I want the position and want it intensely, because it is a high honor because it is a commission, because it offers a field for faithful service, because I feel that I am competent to perform the duties of the office, and because I will do my very best to merit the confidence reposed in me.

"For more than twenty-two years I have given my life to school work in this my native state. Beginning my in the great work of building up an efficient system of schools. My policy shall always be to help, not to hinder.

"Third—To make the department of education serve the classified cities in every possible way. To this end I shall seek for ways to serve the city boards of education and city superintendents.

"Fourth—To co-operate in every helpful way with the boards of which the state superintendent may be a member.

"Fifth—To the organization of courses of study, so as to adjust the educational machinery and work of the schools to the practical living needs of the community at large, and to hold constantly before the children examples of temperance, culture and good citizenship.

"Sixth—To co-operate especially with the literacy commission. The state superintendent is made by law a member of this commission, and I shall most heartily co-operate with the commission in its great work of promoting adult literacy and literacy in general.

"My whole heart, my very life, is in the work; I have had the opportunity for all this training; I have done my best wherever I have worked; and I shall redeem to the letter in good faith every promise made or implied in this announcement. Upon this platform I am earnestly seeking the suffrage of the voters.

"Yours for service,

"V. O. GILBERT."

McCHESNEY ENTERS RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Stands for Constitutional Amendment Submitting to the People Vote on State-Wide Prohibition of Sale of Liquor.

Says it Must Be Determined Whether They or the Whiskey Interests Shall Rule Kentucky.

With the declaration in favor of State-wide prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as the chief plank in his platform, the Hon. H. V. McChesney, of Frankfort, has announced himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the State primary of next August.

Mr. McChesney declares that if nominated and elected, he will urge upon the General Assembly to submit to the people for their ratification an amendment to the Kentucky Constitution providing for State-wide prohibition. In the formal announcement of his candidacy, Mr. McChesney, who several years ago filled the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction and Secretary of State, promises an abridgement of public expenditures where it can be properly done, and the further advancement of the present progress in educational and agricultural development.

His announcement is as follows:

"To the Democratic voters of Kentucky:

After mature deliberation I have decided to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for the office of Governor, in the primary to be held August 7, 1915. In making this announcement it is due those who support I seek that I briefly outline the policies I advocate.

I am in favor of state wide prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. If nominated and elected I shall urge upon the Legislature of 1916 the passage of an act submitting a prohibition amendment to the Constitution to the people for their ratification. In view of the large amount of capital invested in the liquor business, however, I shall favor

The Operation of the New Road Law.

The fact that 104 out of the 120 counties of the Commonwealth have made application through the various Fiscal Courts for State Aid in the construction and re-construction of metal highways bears evidence in the most unmistakable way that the law is a great success. It means that during the year over a million dollars will be spent in the construction of roads. It also means that the former waste through incompetence and ignorance will be eliminated in road construction which heretofore has cost the people much in road building. Under the State Aid law the roads must be built by contract and constructed under plans of the State Engineer, which means that they will be constructed after the most modern and approved methods.

As the county puts up half, one will be a check on the other and there will be neither graft nor sloven and badly constructed work permitted.

One of the most splendid evidences of the success of the new road law is that many of the counties which have not a mile of turnpike road have made application to the State for the full amount permitted under the law of $12,000. As the county has to put up $12,000 in order to get that amount from the State it is indicative of a great road awakening in the State that have heretofore been asleep on the road question.

Wisely, under the provision of the act the poorest county in the State with assessed valuation of property of less than one million dollars can draw as much from the State treasury as the richest county in the State with assessed valuation of two hundred million dollars. This equality of the counties, as far as State assistance goes, will stimulate road construction in the mountains and in the pennyrills as well as in the Blue Grass. Under the provisions of the new road law more than 5,000 miles of good metal highways will be constructed in Kentucky this year which is at least five times the mileage that has been constructed in any year since we can remember.

As the law provides that roads shall be first built which connect county seats, the money will not be partially wasted as under the old county system, where two or three miles of road beginning nowhere and ending nowhere were built, but instead great continuous thoroughfares extending in one uninterrupted line from the big Sandy to the Mississippi and from the Ohio to the Tennessee line will be constructed.

In five years under the operation of this law Kentucky will have a net work of splendid highways which will place the old Commonwealth as the foremost State in the South in the matter of good roads if not in the entire union.

Looking back over a period of nearly a half century of Kentucky history, we cannot compare any law passed in that time which will equal in its results for material prosperity the State Aid law. It is the first great step which has been taken for a new and greater Kentucky.

In this connection we trust we will be pardoned in the statement that the editor of the News wrote the first article in favor of State Aid which led to the submission of the amendment to the State Constitution which permitted State Aid and that the culmination of the fact that we now have State Aid, which has for ten years been the constant aim and purpose of this paper. For the good of Kentucky we have labored unceasingly and we hope to live to see the splendid results in the material prosperity which is sure to come from State Aid to road building.—Elizabeth-town News

The increased interest manifested over the State in improved methods of agriculture and in the construction of good roads is very gratifying. If elected I shall aid every endeavor to further advance the cause of public education. Having devoted a large part of my life to the cause of the public schools, I am deeply interested in their continued growth.

I am in hearty sympathy with the progressive spirit which has marked the State's advance along many lines in recent years, and I shall be no exception if elected to see this spirit yield a still greater fruitage in the agricultural, industrial and commercial development of the Commonwealth.

My record as Superintendent of Public Instruction and as Secretary of State is before the people for their judgment, and I shall enter into no detailed account of my services in these positions. The people of the State are more or less familiar with the record made, and I am willing to risk their judgment of my fitness for the office of Governor on that record.

During my term as Superintendent of Public Instruction the State's per capita was increased largely, the teaching force of the State put on a more efficient basis, and other educational progress made. At the close of my term I wrote this bill increasing the rural school term from five months to six, and the proportion of the funds for the extra month, without increasing the tax rate, and secured their passage by the Legislature. As Secretary of State I was a member of the Board which built the new Capitol, and was also a member of the Board which assessed all franchise taxes, which taxes were very largely increased during that term. The two administrations covered by those eight years marked an era of great prosperity in the governmental affairs of the State—a big debt was paid off, the rural school term increased to six months, two State Normal Schools established, the State University put on a more comprehensive basis, a new Capitol built, many other progressive movements fostered, all without increasing the tax rate, and a full treasury turned over to the succeeding administration. I am proud to have had a part in making that record.

During the seven years since I retired from public office I have responded to every call of the Democratic party. During this time, to the serious neglect of my personal affairs, I have stamped the State for my party in every campaign, giving my time and services to the success of the party's nominees.

My eight years' experience in public office, referred to above, gave me an insight into the affairs of the State government that ought to prove valuable to the Chief Executive. My service to my party since retiring from office perhaps entitles me to some consideration. On this record as a public officer and as a private citizen, with whatever ability I may possess, I submit my candidacy to the Democracy of the State. If nominated and elected I shall devote my entire time and energy to the discharge of the duties of the office in an effort to promote the moral, educational and business interests of the Commonwealth, to the end that it may become a better place even than it is now in which to live.

Respectfully submitted,
H. V. McCHESNEY.

Forty-six years old, virile, enthusiastic, and of a ready wit, Mr. McChesney has made himself one of the best known Democrats in Kentucky through his activity in the interests of the party in every campaign since boyhood. He entered public life at the age of 25, when he was elected County Superintendent of Livingston. He was re-elected to that office. Previous to that he had taught in Caldwell, his native county; Crittenden, where he was reared; Webster and Livingston.

From County Superintendent of Livingston he was promoted to the office of State Superintendent in 1899, running on the Grobel ticket. Four years later he was elected Secretary of State on the ticket with J. C. W. Beckham.

Their friendship has been continuous and close since that time. Mr. McChesney was chairman of the speakers' bureau of State headquarters in 1911 and, excepting Governor McCreary himself, made more speeches in the campaign than any other Democrat. He stamped the State with Mr. Beckham when the latter was elected United States Senator.

Probably no public man in the State is in more demand as a speaker on all sorts of occasions than Mr. McChesney, and his interests in affairs touching community life, as well as the welfare of the State, are well known in Frankfort, where he has resided and has been practicing law since leaving State office.

He is at present a member of the City Board of Education, a Director of the Y. M. C. A., Vice-President of the Kentucky State Historical Society, and a deacon in the Baptist Church / President of its Sunday School.

Feed Out Your Hogs Six Weeks Earlier.

In every lot of hogs on feed two or three fatten quickly and actually eat less than others. If all would fatten like these, the entire drove would be ready for the market six weeks earlier and to save six weeks feed is an item that you fully understand.

The hog that fattens easily must be in prime physical condition. The B. A. Thomas Hog Powder is a conditioner for hogs. It keeps their system clean and healthy and enables them to fatten quickly without falling a prey to the usual diseases of hogs. The B. A. Thomas Hog Powder is not stock food. It's straight medicine, and we took the agency because it enables you to feed out your hogs much earlier. For sale at Wedding's Drug Store, Cloverport, Ky.

How Do You Stand In Regard to School Law.

As a matter of note to all and every candidate offering himself to be voted for in the August Primary election for the office of Representative in the general assembly of either branch at next November election, said candidate will be requested to pace himself before the voters as to whether he favors or not favors the amending of the school laws of this Commonwealth. So as every child in the school age will be entitled to draw its pro-rata of the school money, matters not who teaches are place taught. Are you in favor of such amendment of the school laws or not?—A Voter.

About Things of Which They Know Nothing.

"I have noticed, all my life," said President Wilson in his speech to the electric railway men, "that I could speak with the greatest freedom about those things that I do not understand." Few men have been willing to make so frank a confession, but the practice is all but universal. Men speak about subjects that they have thoroughly mastered usually with care. They know the numerous pitfalls into which the unwary may fall, and how deceptive circumstances frequently are. But when it comes to talking about other people's business the same men will utter their views with a dogmatism frequently born of ignorance.—Louisville Post.

a provision in the Act giving a reasonable time, after its ratification, before it becomes operative, in order that those engaged in the business may adjust their affairs without too great a sacrifice.

I have no fault to find with the County Unit Law. I have favored every advanced step taken in the various amendments. It is a step in the right direction, and has been a great blessing to the Commonwealth. Under it 106 counties have voted dry; but the remaining counties contain a very considerable part of the total population of the State. The present law seems inadequate to give relief to the people of most of these counties. And again, the liquor interests, instead of showing respect for the County Unit Law, and for the will of the people as expressed at the polls, have been contesting every election where the result was dry, and going into the courts with every possible technicality. In an effort to defeat the will of the people. Not only has this been their attitude toward the law and its enforcement, but they have made it their business to bitterly oppose every man who aspires to public office who does not take his orders from them. A temperance man can not run for any office in Kentucky, however humble, without feeling the weight of their wrath, expressed in the usual way. Their efforts to dominate the politics of the State have increased as county after county has been added to the dry column, until their influence has become a menace to popular government.

In view of all this it seems that there is but one solution to the problem, and that is to submit it to the whole people that we may know once and for all time whether the people or the liquor interests are to rule in Kentucky. Not only is this the logic of the situation, but it is absolutely fair. Who can be heard to say that the people as a whole haven't a right to pass on a question so vitally affecting their moral and financial welfare? We submit good roads amendments and taxation amendments to the whole people—why not submit this question, infinitely more vital to them?

As stated above, I am not unmindful of the property interests involved. It is to be regretted that moral reforms often bring financial loss to some; but the public conscience justifies the loss to the few when it means an infinitely greater saving to the many. The onward march of Christian civilization must not be retarded because a few men have invested their money in the business constituting the obstruction.

My familiarity with the financial affairs of the State, as a result of eight years' experience (from 1900 to 1907) as Superintendent of Public Instruction and Secretary of State, and as a member of the Sinking Fund Board, leads me to the belief that such a revision of our taxation system can be made as will readily reduce the State debt, and make good any decrease in revenues that might arise from the loss of the tax on liquors. And this can be done without any increase of tax rate. Saving State revenue to just as important as producing them. With the elimination of the liquor business from Kentucky the saving to the State in criminal prosecutions alone would be an enormous item, and go far toward a solution of the financial problem. If the money spent for liquor in Kentucky, and for criminal prosecutions growing out of its use can be saved, in half a dozen years we can relieve the financial situation of the State and build a meadum road to every church and school house in the Commonwealth.

Another large saving can be accomplished by the elimination of all useless salaries, and if elected I shall institute a

DESERVES INDORSEMENT WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

The Elizabethtown Mirror of last Thursday, in editorially commenting on Judge Moorman's candidacy to succeed himself as Commonwealth's Attorney, said:

"Mr. Moorman was elected to the office to fill out an unexpired term and has been filling the position only a short time. His record during this time has been most excellent, showing that he is 'the right man in the right place.' His record is above censure, and he will have no opposition for the office. Mr. Moorman has been a practicing attorney at Hardinsburg for years and served Breckenridge county at one time as County Judge. He is well equipped for the office, owing to his long experience in the law business, and the Mirror predicts that he will still continue to fill the office of Commonwealth's Attorney with the same attention, efficiency and ability as in the past."

The Elizabethtown News, on January 12, 1915, then realizing the splendid record being made by Judge Moorman, editorially commenting on his announcement, said:

"Judge Moorman was nominated for this office by a decisive majority in August, 1913, and the high character of service he has rendered is the best argument he can employ in seeking an indorsement. He has splendid standing not only as a lawyer and official, but as a gentleman, and fully measures up to the duties which devolve upon him."

As a party worker his service has been loyal and liberal. There is, at the present time, little likelihood of opposition to Judge Moorman, and we believe that should the Democrats of the Ninth Judicial District entrust him with a nomination for the six years' term their confidence will not be misplaced."

Hardin County's attitude to our candidate is thus demonstrated by its press, and, doubtless, this is the sentiment of the people and papers of Meade and Grayson, in which counties Judge Moorman has not yet announced, but received good majorities in the primary, then being elected without opposition. Mr. Carter's card declining to run and indorsing Breckenridge County's candidate, is manly, fair and Democratic, and will long be remembered in the district and will redound to his credit and benefit, as he was a strong opponent for the short term.

The Breckenridge News has witnessed the career of Judge Moorman with increasing interest and absolute confidence in his success. From youth, he has been honest, energetic and impartial and has fearlessly stood for the men and measures that he believed would best serve the people. He is recognized as an able lawyer, true Democrat, and capable official by all who know him, and he fearlessly says and does what he deems his duty. Though the youngest, he made one of the best County Judges Kentucky has had. He has, in a year, made a reputation as one of the most forceful and eloquent prosecuting officers of the State, and our people should stand squarely behind him. He is a born fighter, and, armed with his record, we predict for him a large majority, if opposed, but believe that he will be spared this time, trouble and expense.

LITTLE WOMAN WITH A BIG HEART.

An interesting rich woman was Mrs. Laura Spelman Rockefeller who died at the home of her husband, John D. Rockefeller in New York last Friday. She met Mr. Rockefeller while they were both students at the Cleveland High School and they were good friends, nothing more, apparently for several years. They were married in September 1884 on the eve of the bride's twenty-fifth birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller were devoted companions and it was a pathetic circumstance that he should have been so far away when the end came. Once when his life was threatened she always went with him when he left home. One day she was advised not to, but she said to Mr. Rockefeller, "If anything happens to you, I want it to happen to me too." On Sunday they were always seen together going to the Baptist church. Mrs. Rockefeller was the mother of four daughters and one son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr. One of the traits she instilled in her children was thrift. Once she averaged out the gas bills for a year and promised as spending money to her elder daughter any sum she might save each month by watching that no lights were left burning needlessly. Mrs. Rockefeller was very charitable not only to the poor, but to her own friends in her personal relations with them. She not only gave money to the poor, but she gave love and comfort to the rich. This is why she was called "A Little Woman With a Big Heart."

EDUCATIONAL WORK IN PRISONS.

Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing in New York, is perfecting plans for a business training school in this prison. There will be classes in law, music and a thorough business course. The school is expected to open next month. The first language to be taken up will be Spanish for Warden Osborne believes there is a golden opportunity in the republics of South and Central America for men with a knowledge of Spanish. Recently a convict, serving a third term for burglary, knitted a complete outfit for a baby. The man, generally supposed to be a hardened criminal, took a touching interest in his knitting for a little sufferer of Poland. Such interesting responses are encouraging to those who are promoting prison reform. Empty hands are worse than iron bars.

Recently several small boys had to pay their fines by working on the streets in Cloverport. Work is a healthier punishment than being locked up and it was the most admirable way to punish the boys who had disobeyed certain orders. When the states and cities furnish work and educational training for the hands, hearts and minds of their prisoners, they will be doing the greatest uplift work ever started for mankind.

A CHANCE TO GET WELL.

Early next month the Hazelwood Sanatorium at Louisville will be re-opened for the treatment of tuberculosis in all stages. Treatment and board to consumptives will be furnished at actual cost or less. The twenty-five thousand consumptives in Kentucky should be encouraged to take advantage of this chance to get well. Tubercular patients, like other sick people, loathe to leave home, but they should be urged to go to Hazelwood. If the treatment does not cure, they may, at least, have satisfaction of knowing that they tried to get health and hope again. People who are blessed with strength and confidence, should impart it to those who are discouraged and feel there is no use trying to heal a tubercular lung. Make them feel there is another chance, that it is worth while to fight for health, that living is struggling and they must never give up. The consumptives must hasten to Hazelwood, up there on the hill side is pure air and sunshine, cleanliness, rest and quietude. There one may find their hopes brighter for the day and tomorrow is not a fear and a dread.

The Cloverport High School Commencement will be held Friday night, May the twenty-first. The graduating class is enthusiastically preparing for commencement week. They are arranging a most creditable program, and will publish an annual for which they have had quick success in getting ads to meet the expense of its publication. The school has given us these orders for printing and engraving and this makes us more than interested in their plans for a bright and happy commencement.

The Belgians are stars of the war for the people of the world have kept their kind eyes turned to little Belgium. Everybody has seemed to have heard something of them and in some cases have gotten the wrong conception of their suffering people. The other day two little darkies were playing over on an East Side Corner and one became very impatient with the other and demanded: "Play fair, there, you little Belgium."

Three per cent discount will be allowed on all taxes for the year 1915, if paid before or on April 12. That's in Elizabethtown. In Cloverport notice has been given if all taxes for 1914 are not paid before March 29, property will be advertised. Pay your taxes early is a good plan, especially, if you get a discount.

Someone has started a chain prayer again, believing if you pass it by a great calamity will befall you and a great joy will come if you write it to nine others. Only a fearful heart and a foolish pen will notice such letters. Put your trust in the faith that brings the right answer to real prayer.

CANNED EGGS ARE BEST

Startling Statements Given by Chemist in Federal Suit.

New York. (Special) With a can of ten year old eggs before him to confirm his startling assertions, Dr. E. R. Smith, chemist and food expert, testified before Judge Humphrey in the United States district court that such eggs could be kept free from decay for twenty, thirty or even a hundred years.

The climax in the doctor's testimony, however, was reached when he declared that in many cases they were better eating after ten years than they were when freshly laid. This, he said, was because the 2 or 2½ per cent boracic acid solution in which they were canned, killed off bacteria which might have been transmitted to the egg by the hen.

Dr. Smith appeared as an expert witness for Robert Herbst, who is suing to recover from Edward S. Fowler, former collector of the port and two other defendants, the value of canned eggs, which he imported from China in 1908, which had been destroyed by the collector.

IS CONVICTED OF REBATING

New Jersey Central Faces Minimum Penalty of $185,000.

Trenton, N. J. (Special) The Central railroad of New Jersey was convicted in the United States district court here on an indictment containing 185 counts, charging it with granting rebates in violation of the Elkins law. The conviction makes the company liable to a minimum penalty of $185,000 and a maximum of $3,700,000. An appeal will be taken.

The specific charge in each count was that the Central had granted a rebate to the Lehigh Coal & Navigation company in shipments of anthracite coal from Nesquehoning, Pa., to points in New York and New Jersey. It also was charged that these rebates were not indicated in the tariff schedules filed with the interstate commerce commission.

Do You Find the Wicked Cheerful?
In the American Magazine David Grayson, author of "Hempfield," comments as follows on the cheerfulness of the wicked:
"We are nearly all of us shocked by the cheerfulness of the wicked. We feel that those whom we have set aside as reprobates or sinful spectacles should by good right draw long faces and be appropriately miserable, and we never become quite accustomed to our own surprise at finding them happy or contented."

The Million Dollar Mystery

CHAPTER XIII.

An Agent From Russia.

The Black Hundred, not as individuals but as an organization, began to worry. Powerful, and often reckless and daring because it was powerful, it began to look about for some basic cause for all these failures against Hargrave's daughter and Hargrave's ghost. They had tried to put the inquisitive reporter out of the way; they had laid every trap they could think of to catch the mysterious visitor at the Hargrave home; they had thrown out a hundred lures to bring Hargrave out of his lair, and failed; and they had lost a dozen valuable men and several thousand dollars. This must end somewhere, and quickly.

The one ray of hope for the conspirators lay in the fact that Florence had never seen her father and knew not in the least what he looked like. They determined to try again in this direction.

"Give it all up," said the countess to Braine. "I tell you, whatever is back of all this is stronger than we are. He knows the organization, and for all we know he may be a ghost."

"I never go back," smiled Braine. "There's something more than the million. There's the sport of the thing. We've been bested in a dozen bouts, and nearly always by a fluke. They have the breaks, as they say out at the Polo grounds."

"But the time and expense when we might be getting results elsewhere! I tell you, Leo, I'm afraid. It's like always hearing some one behind you and never finding anybody when you turn. I have told you my doubts. I have also asked you to trap that butler, but you've always laughed."

"You are seeing ghosts, Olga. A new man from Russia," shrugging, "is coming tonight. Evidently the head over there thinks our contributions of late have not been up to the mark, and they are going to stir us up. I am willing to wager my soul, however, that that box is simply a hoax to befuddle us. Either that or it holds the key. But the rest of them insist that the box must be recovered. When I leave this room tonight I am going over to Riverdale and stalk all by myself. I'm going to get a glimpse of that mysterious stranger. He carries a scar of mine somewhere, for I hit him that night."

The door opened and the executive chamber became silent.

"Count Paroff," boomed the voice of Vroon. "He will present his credentials."

This formality was executed as prescribed by the rules; and Count Paroff was given his chair. He spoke for a while, rather pompously.

"The head organization is not satisfied with its offspring in this Hargrave affair," he said in conclusion. "You are slow."

"Then you have come with some suggestions for the betterment of our business?" asked Braine ironically.

"Sir, this is not the hour for flippancy," said the agent coldly.

Braine made a sign with his hand, a sign not observed by every one. Instantly Paroff bent lowly. He recognized that the speaker was the actual, not the nominal, head of the American branch.

"What are your suggestions?" inquired the nominal head from his chair, anxious to avoid a clash between the newcomer and the truculent master of them all.

"I have been informed that Hargrave's daughter has never seen her father, not even a photograph of him," said Paroff, more amiably.

"We are absolutely certain that this is the case," said the nominal head, who was known as the president. "But we tried one play in that direction, and it failed miserably."

"I have the story," replied Paroff. "It was clumsily done. The ruse was an old one."

Braine was frank enough to admit the truth of this statement, however much he disliked the admission. He nodded.

"I have authority to take a hand in this affair. We cannot waste all summer. Those government plans of the fortifications of the Panama are waiting. There's your millions. But the fact remains that it is the law of the Black Hundred never to step down till absolutely defeated. The hidden million is but bait; we must find and break this renegade Hargrave."

"If he lives," said Braine.

"Who can say one way or the other?" brusquely asked Paroff. "The fact that all your plans and schemes have come to naught should prove to you that you are not fighting a ghost. There is but one way to bring out the truth."

"And that is to make a captive of his daughter," supplemented Braine. "And we have worked toward that end ceaselessly. We are quite ready to listen to your suggestions, count."

"And so am I," thought the man with his ear to the little hole in the ceiling above. "And some day, my energetic friend, I'm going to pay you back for that bullet."

Count Paroff cleared his voice and laid his plans before his audience.

"To act frankly and in the open, to go boldly to the Hargrave home and proclaim myself Hargrave. I can disguise myself in a manner that will at least temporarily fool the butler."

"Who has been with his master for fourteen years, knows every move, habit, gesture, inflection," interposed Braine. "But proceed, count, proceed. You will remember the old adage: too many cooks."

"Ah," flashed back the count, "but a new cook?"

Olga touched Braine's arm warningly.

"You mean, then, that there has been talk in St. Petersburg of disposing of some one?"

"A good deal of talk, sir," haughtily, forgetting that he had bent humbly enough but a few moments gone.

"Very well; go on."

Thought the man at the peephole

above: "There's another adage. When thieves fall out, then honest men get their dues. Yes, yes; proceed, proceed!"

Paroff went on. "I shall, then, go frankly to the Hargrave house and claim my own. Meantime I leave to you the business of luring the butler away. Half an hour is all I need to bring that child here, to break the wall that stands between us and what we seek."

"Is that so?" murmured Braine. "Olga, I want you to play a trick on this handsome delegate-at-large. I'm not very enthusiastic over his talk. I want him humiliated. All you have to do, he says, is to walk into the Hargrave house and walk out again."

"Well, let's you and I see that he does that and nothing else. I'll have no one meddling with my own game."

Some one sneezed, and everybody looked at his neighbor. The sneeze was repeated, but muffled, as if some one was desperately anxious to avoid sneezing.

"It came from above!" whispered Olga. "Don't look up!"

Braine was cool. He walked idly across the room to where Vroon sat. "Very well, Paroff; we give you free rein." To Vroon he said: "Some one is watching us from the room overhead. I thought that room belonged to us."

"It does," said Vroon stolidly. "Then how is it that some one is watching from up there? No excitement. I'm going to bid every one good-night, then I'm going to investigate. When I leave you will quietly send men to all exits to the building. I want the man who sneezed, and I want him badly."

Olga departed with Braine, only she immediately sought the taxi that brought her and was driven home. It was always understood that when any serious exploit was under way hereabouts she was to make her departure at once.

Vroon stationed his men at the several exits and Braine went upstairs. The man who had sneezed, however, had vanished as completely as if he had worn that invisible cloak one reads about in the Persian tales. As a matter of fact, after the second sneeze he had gone up to the roof, got out by the trap, and jumped—rather risky business, too—to the next roof and had clambered down the fire escape of the second building. He was swearing inaudibly. After all these days of care and planning, after all his cleverness in locating the rendezvous of the Black Hundred, and now, to lose his advantage because of an uncontrollable sneeze! He would never dare go back, and just when he was beginning to pick up fine bits of information! So Florence Hargrave was going to have a new father in a day or so? There were some clever rogues among this band of thieves; but their cleverness was well offset by an equal number of fools.

Yes, there were some clever rogues, and to prove this assertion Braine secured a taxicab and drove furiously away, his destination the home of his ancient enemy. He dropped the cab a block or two away and presently stowed himself away in the summer house at the left of the lawn. It would quick," he laughed, picking up his hat. "What a horrid thing money is! If I hadn't any money, nobody would bother me."

"I would," he smiled. He wanted to kiss her, but the eternal Jones might be watching from the windows; and so he patted her hand instead and walked down the gravelled path to the street.

It was difficult work for Florence to play at friendship. She was like her father; she did not bestow it on every one. She had given her friendship to the Russian, the first real big friendship in her life, and she had been roughly disillusioned. But if the countess could not, so could she; and of the two her netting was the more consummate. She could smile and laugh and jest, all the while her heart was burning with wrath.

One day, a week or so after her meeting with Norton in the summer house, Olga arrived, beautifully gowned, handsome as ever. There was not the least touch of the adventuress in her makeup. Florence had just received some mail, and she had dropped the letters on the library table to greet the countess. She had opened them, but had not yet looked at their contents.

They were chatting pleasantly about inconsequent things, when the maid came in and asked Florence to come to Miss Susan's room for a moment. Florence excused herself, wondering what Susan could want. She forgot the mail.

As soon as she was gone the countess, certain that Jones was not lurking about, picked up the letters and calmly examined their contents; and among them she found this remarkable document: "Dear daughter I have never seen you. I must turn the treasure over to you. Meet me at eight in the summer house. Tell no one as my life is in danger. Your loving father."

The countess could have laughed aloud. She saw this man Paroff's hand; and here was the chance to be fool and humiliate him and send him off packing to his cold and miserable country. She had made up once as Florence, and she could easily do so again. The only thing that troubled her was the fact that she did not know whether Florence had read the letter above: "There's another adage. When thieves fall out, then honest men get their dues. Yes, yes; proceed, proceed!"

Paroff went on. "I shall, then, go frankly to the Hargrave house and claim my own. Meantime I leave to you the business of luring the butler away. Half an hour is all I need to bring that child here, to break the wall that stands between us and what we seek."

deeper than the rest of us have any idea of."

"Perhaps I am," thought Florence; "at least, deeper than you believe."

When the countess fluttered down to her limousine—Florence hated the sight of it—and drove away, Florence remembered her letters. And when she came to the one purporting to be from her father, she read it carefully, bent her head in thought, and finally destroyed the missive, absolutely confident that it was only a trap, and not very well conceived at that. Norton had given her plenty of reason for believing all such letters to be forgeries. Her father, if he really wished to see her, would enter the house; he would not write. Ah, when would she see that father of hers, so mysterious, always hovering near, always unseen?

It must have been an amusing adventure for the countess. To steal into the summer house and wait there, not knowing if Florence had advised Jones or the reporter. If caught, she had her excuses. Paroff, the confident, however, appeared shortly after. "My child!" whispered the man.

And Olga stifled a laugh; but to him it sounded like a sob.

"I am worn out," he said. "I am tired of the game of hide and seek."

"You will not have to play the game long," thought Olga.

"The money is hidden in my office down town. And we must go there at once. When we return we will pick up and leave for Europe. I've longed to see you so!"

"You poor fool! And they sent you to supersede Leo!" she mused.

She played out the farce to the very end. She permitted herself to be plied and jogged; and for what unnecessary roughness she suffered at the hands of Paroff he would presently pay. He took her straight to the executive chamber of the Black Hundred and pushed her into the room, exclaiming triumphantly:

"Here is Hargrave's daughter!"

"Indeed!" said Olga, throwing back her veil and standing revealed in her mask.

"Olga!" cried Braine, laughing. And that was the inglorious end of the secret agent from Russia.

HILL ITEMS.

Be kind to the toiler that you meet on the street every day. To the man in the ditch who is laying the sewer that is to keep contagion from you and your loved ones; to the woman scrubbing the tile that your feet may have a clean place to tread. It is but the accident of chance that put either there in your stead.—L. A. S.

The Rev. R. E. Reeves, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will fill his regular appointment next Sunday, March 21st.

The mumps have been almost as prevalent on the hill as was the measles, and seems much more objectionable. One little girl said a month ago, "Be sure and put in the paper that I am sick and got the measles." Today she said, "I've got the mumps, but don't put it in the paper, just say I am sick."

A Wonderful Healing Influence In Kidney Troubles.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of Kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the Bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp-Root.

Yours very truly,
H. W. SPINKS,
Camp Hill, Ala.
Personally appearing before me this 10th day of August, 1919, H. W. Spinks, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

SYMPTOMS

Slight Symptoms Sometimes Presage Serious Results.

Do you feel tired, have you a sallow complexion, constipation, headache, bad breath, sleeplessness or circles around your eyes? If so, you are undoubtedly suffering from some liver complaint.

Perhaps you don't feel very badly now, but delay is dangerous. To allow your liver to continue out of order, is to invite a serious chronic illness.

Whenever you have the slightest symptoms of liver trouble, stop it immediately. You can do it harmlessly and mildly by taking LIV-VER LAX, the natural vegetable compound that is replacing calomel everywhere. It has all the effectiveness, not the effect of calomel. Insist on getting the original LIV-VER LAX, bearing the likeness and signature of L. K. Grigsby, which is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. For sale by Kincheloe's Pharmacy.

OBITUARY.

On the 8th the Angel of Death visited our little town and took from us our beloved sister, Mrs. Brooker M. Smith. The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. R. Oldham on the 9th, at her home; and her remains were laid to rest in the Scott graveyard, to wait the judgment. She was the wife of Joe S. Smith, and leaves a husband, two sons and one daughter to mourn her loss, but their loss is her eternal gain. Sister Smith professed Christ about twenty-eight years ago, and has lived a true Christian, ever ready to do God's will. She has been heard to say, that she was ready to go at any time, the Lord called her, and how sweet it is to be ready. I would say to the Father and children, "Weep not, as one that has no hope, for we are sure that she is at rest."

Sister Smith was born, Feb. 7th, 1865, married to Joe Smith, Feb. 14th, 1886. To this union was five children, Arthur, Shervie, and Lillie, who are living with their father, and the two that outlived their loving mother to heaven, was Meadie and the little infant boy. Sister Smith, was a kind, affectionate wife, a fond mother, and a friend to all. How the children will miss her, to know her was to love her. "Farewell, dear husband, my life is passed, My love was yours, while life did last, After me no sorrow take, But love my children, for my sake."

AUSTRIA THREATENED BY A FAMINE

Police Called Upon to Quell Disorder and Riots.

Rome, (Special) It is reported authentically from Vienna that Austria is threatened seriously with famine. Flour has gone up to fifty cents a pound and numerous poor people are already without bread.

The dispatch says that discontent has been displaced by indignation and that the situation is most alarming. For this reason the censorship has been increased, the police are active in quelling disorder, and the courts are very busy convicting complaining citizens on the charge of high treason.

Italians and Hungarians have been persecuted severely. The Countess Vidovic, a native of Marburg, has been sentenced to a year at hard labor because she caused trouble at the weekly fast day by singing a Servian hymn. A widow of Trent has been sentenced to two years because she aided her son to desert.

The most prominent families in the Trentino district have been apprehended on the suspicion that they are preparing for an Italian invasion. Many are fleeing to Italy, while the exodus from Austria to Switzerland is increasing daily.

MRS. J. D. ROCKEFELLER

Died at Home at Pocantico
Hills, After Long Illness.

MRS. ROCKEFELLER DIES AT TARRYTOWN Daughter of Rich Man, She Marries Poor Boy.

New York, (Special) After an illness of weeks, from anemia and other ailments due to old age, Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Sr., is dead at Pocantico Hills. She was precariously ill for a time last summer of the same disease, and it was on this account, in a large measure, that Mr. Rockefeller moved from his Cleveland home to his New York estate at Pocantico Hills.

With Mrs. Rockefeller at the end were her only sister, Miss Lucy Spelman, Dr. Paul Allan, of this city, her family physician, and one or two of the old servants of the household.

Mrs. Rockefeller had been thought to be improving, and one day this week she was carried out into the garden to see the flowers.

Neither Mr. Rockefeller nor his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was with Mrs. Rockefeller when she died. Both were at Ormond, Fla., where they went a few days ago in the belief that Mrs. Rockefeller was not seriously ill. On learning of her death they started for home on a special train.

Pending the arrival of Mr. Rockefeller and his son, no arrangements have been made for the burial.

Mrs. Rockefeller lived the quiet, retired life of many another American woman. Her wealth has never been to her a matter of great moment.

She was Laura Castella Spelman before her marriage, and her home was in Cleveland, where her father, H. B. Spelman was a merchant.

She and her husband were classmates at the Central high school in Cleveland. More than ten years ago Mrs. Rockefeller gave a reception for all the members of that class that could be gathered together. Among them were three senators—Hanna, Wolcott and John P. Jones.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR

The German war office announced that the British have failed to advance beyond Neuve Chapelle, the capture of which town they admit.

Reports from Petrograd say that a new advance on Warsaw is being made by the Germans from directly north, and from the Przanysz region. About half a million men are said to have been assembled by the Germans for this movement.

British warships have bombarded Westende again. In Poland the Russians have retreated from Grodno with heavy losses, and the Germans have progressed in the Przanysz region.

The British under secretary said in the house of commons that Japan's demands on China had not violated the spirit of the treaty made by the allies and that England's agreement with Japan insured the preservation of the "open door" policy in that country, and also China's integrity. Japan has modified her demands on China and the situation seems to have been smoothed over.

Germany has proposed to Italy that she remain neutral on condition that Austria cede the Trentino to her. Italy has not yet replied and important conferences continue night and day. The moment for Italian intervention is close at hand, according to dispatches from Rome.

The British admiralty announces the loss of the auxiliary patrol cruiser Hayano, of 3,500 tons. The vessel was apparently sunk by a German submarine. Only twenty-six members of the crew were saved.

Prize Holoists Slaughtered.
Elizabeth, N. J. (Special) The discovery of the hoof and mouth disease caused the slaughter of twenty-two prize Holoists belonging to August Benhardt, of Cranford.

PEOPLE FLEEING CONSTANTINOPLE

Attack on the Dardanelles
Continues Unabated.

ALLIES CAPTURE TRENCHES

Are Now Facing Main Positions of German Army and Is Extending Over a Wider Front Than Formerly.

Paris, March 8.—The French offensive continues unchecked in Champagne.

The attacks are now being carried out in most unfavorable weather conditions, but despite the handicap, the communiques issued by the French war office record additional advances in this region. The French onslaughts are now being extended over a wider front and are reaching to a considerable distance west of Perthes, the previous fight having been centered mainly north and east of that village and north of Mesnil-Les-Hurlus.

Most of the outlying German trenches have now been captured, and the operations are taking the allied troops against the main fortified positions of the enemy, where progress will necessarily be slower, although there is every expectation that it will be relatively successful.

The communiques announce that west of Perthes the French gained a foothold in a wooded section which the Germans had organized solidly. North of the village they repulsed a counter attack, while at Mesnil and Beaulieu more ground was taken. The Germans continue their efforts at Lorette north of Arras. They attempted four attacks, but all failed. The German heavy batteries at Westende in Flanders have been subjected to a severe fire.

London, March 8.—The inner defenses bombardment of the Dardanelles and the defenses on the Gulf of Saros continues much in the same manner as on the preceding days, the dreadnought Queen Elizabeth battering away at the works on the Asiatic side of the strait, by the indirect method of attack, while part of the fleet poured in a direct fire from within the passageway. A statement issued by the French ministry of marines at Paris and telegraphed here, says:

"The battleship Queen Elizabeth, stationed in the Gulf of Saros bombarded by indirect fire on March 6, the two large works on the Asiatic side of the strait which defends the narrow Chanaik, namely Forts Hamidieh-Tabla and Hamidieh-Sultanie. At the same time battleships which had penetrated the strait continued by direct fire, the bombardment of the work at Dardanos, on the Asiatic side and Souan-Dire on the European side."

A dispatch from Bucharest says that the attacks on the inner forts have caused the panic in Constantinople to grow. The exodus of the well-to-do residents of the Turkish capital has begun, and a number of families, mostly Greeks, have reached Bucharest.

Fifty German military officers, who have been in Turkey, have passed through Bucharest on their way to Berlin. Other German officers, accompanied by their families, arrived here and will proceed to Berlin shortly.

In addition to other troubles, the people of Constantinople now are threatened with famine, according to the Bucharest correspondents. Bread has been requisitioned for the troops in such quantities that little is left for civilians. It is freely reported that the Germans have totally lost their influence in the capital and that most of them have left already for Germany.

GERMANS PUSH TOWARD WARSAW

Teuton Troops Forming For Russian Drive.

TURKEY GIVEN SEVERE BLOW

London, March 15.—According to French official statements it is said French troops captured an important position in the Argonne and that the Belgian troops continued their advance in the vicinity of the Pser. The Belgians, assisted by French heavy artillery, destroyed an important defensive point in a cemetery at Dixmude. The German artillery bombarded the cathedral at Solissons. The Germans also bombarded Rheims.

Reports from Russia state that lines are forming for a new battle in north Poland. They have already been clashes by the north Russian and German outposts. There are evidences that Field Marshal Von Hindenberg is preparing for another drive at Warsaw. He is said to have more troops now than on his previous unsuccessful attempts.

The German official statement stated they had repulsed attacks of the French in Champagne near Souain. In the eastern theater of war, there was no change.

Arrangements have been made by the envoys at the vatican of Prussia, Bavaria and Austria that their interests shall be looked after by the Spanish envoy in case of Italy joining the allies in the war.

The English East Indian fleet again bombarded Smyrna, and the surrender of the city is momentarily expected. The population has fled to the interior. The bombardment of the Dardanelles by the Franco-British fleet continues, but has been somewhat interfered with by the weather conditions.

London, March 15.—A serious blow at Turkey, in that it prevents the exportation of army munitions and supplies from Austria and Germany to that country, has been dealt by Romania and Bulgaria, according to dispatches received from Sofia, via Rome. The Balkan powers having signed a railway convention at Bucharest, which allows the transit of all goods, but arms and munitions. It is believed here that this will have a great effect, as the Turks are already short of ammunition and can not continue for any time the defenses of the Dardanelles upon their own resources.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Hurdlock Blood Bitters, the family system tonic. Price $1.00.

At last the world is beginning to lay more stress on the importance of the father in the home. Mrs. James Bolin, Mrs. Kirk and Mrs. Netherland served delightful home made candies during the social hour following the program.

Mrs. Board and Mrs. Chas. Hawes were hostesses at the social meeting of the Methodist Missionary Society which met at Mrs. Hawes' on Tuesday. An interesting chapter on young working girls from Mrs. Bacon's Beauty For Ashes, was read and discussed. Delightful refreshments were served. Mrs. George Woolfolk, of Chester, Pa., was a guest on the occasion.

W. J. Piggott, Jesse Payne and Bob Jordan motored to Hardinsburg Saturday afternoon for a Masonic meeting. Jeff Adams, of the Masonic Home in Louisville, was present to help confer degrees and dedicate the hall. The men who motored down are thoroughly convinced that Breckinridge county needs good roads.

Jeff Adams, Superintendent Masonic Widows and Orphans Home, spent Saturday night with W. J. Piggott.

NAVAL PROBLEMS.

How to Protect Warships From Mines and Torpedoes.

CAN BOTTOMS BE ARMORED?

This is a Question That Can Be Answered Only by Experiment and May Involve Radical Changes in Construction Above the Water Line.

The next departure in the construction of war vessels will be armor-plating their bottoms. The mines and the submarines have demonstrated that side armor and impenetrable turrets are of very small account when the bottom of a ship can be so easily pierced.

The problem of protecting the bottom may look insoluble, but it cannot look more hopeless than the protection of the sides did fifty or sixty years ago. The idea of getting enough armor upon the sides of a ship to afford substantial protection looked impossible to naval architects of two generations ago. But bold inventors and constructors tried the experiment, and it succeeded.

Then the guns were increased in size in order to penetrate the thin armor of the day, and the naval constructors found it possible to add greatly to the thickness of the plates, and successive improvements in the quality of the plates were effected.

The next step was to attack the decks of war vessels by vertical fire, and the constructors introduced protective decks. Then the mine and the torpedo were perfected, and the submarine vessel was invented, and now the problem is to protect war vessels below the water line.

It may or it may not be possible to do this, but the experiment will be made, and it is as likely to succeed as some of the earlier experiments. Of course, bottom armor would add greatly to the weight of a vessel, but the displacement can be increased enough to give the necessary buoyancy.

Besides, it may be worth while to take off some of the turret and side armor to save weight. Of course the stability of the ship would be increased if the heaviest plates were below the water line instead of above. The sides of a vessel do not present a very large target, and the protection of the bottom may be important enough to justify a reduction in the protection of the sides.

When the naval architects found it necessary to increase the thickness of the side armor they reduced the area to be protected to the vitals of a ship, the engine room and the principal battery. The bow and stern could be sacrificed and yet leave the central part of the ship intact, with the motive power and the biggest guns.

This principle may be carried still farther. Still less protection may be given the sides and top of the "citadel," in order to give more to the bottom, which can be attacked by an invisible enemy. The turrets are very heavy and being placed high above the water, they are where they have the greatest effect in impairing the vessel's stability.

At the distances at which vessels usually fight now the platforms of the big guns present a very minute target; the chances of their being hit is small; for the sake of protecting the bottom it may be worth while to replace the massive turrets with light shields designed only to protect the gun crews from small, rapid fire guns and fragments of shells, and put the weight where it will resist torpedoes and mines.

It may be that no bottom will stand the explosion of a mine or a torpedo, but the next departure in battleship construction will test this. The efficacy of the submarine has been demonstrated, and the present task of naval constructors is to devise protection from it.—Philadelphia Record.

GREAT CROWDS

HEAR COOPER

Our Faulty Method of Living Produces Ill Health, He Says.

Lexington, March 16.—L. T. Cooper, the man who created such a favorable impression in the big Eastern cities with his health theories and medicine, has attracted immense gatherings in Lexington, where the famous philanthropist has delivered a series of lectures in connection with his introduction of Tanlac, the medicine that is producing such remarkable results in Central Kentucky.

Probably ten or fifteen thousand have heard Cooper talk during the past few weeks. Possessed of an unusual amount of personal magnetism, Cooper seems to draw his crowds from all walks of life, and from everywhere in the Blue Grass section.

During the course of a recent lecture he said:

"Possibly the most prevalent and distressing condition known to we Americans is chronic catarrh of the mucous membranes. Catarrh of the stomach is the most frequent cause of dyspepsia, and catarrhal conditions in the nose and throat lead to inevitable deafness. Show me a man whose hearing is affected and I will show you a man who is suffering from catarrh."

"Frequently," continued the great student, "the lungs become diseased by the extension of catarrhal inflammation by way of the bronchial tubes to the lung substance."

"The mental and physical state of chronic catarrh sufferers is, indeed, very unfortunate, and it is really surprising to know what an immense number of people are suffering from this almost universal malady when they think something else is wrong with them."

Cooper then enumerated the numerous symptoms of catarrh, such as an offensive breath, constant sniffling, discharges from the nose, droppings in the throat, frequent sneezing, watery eyes, full head, headaches, depression of spirits, nervousness, unsound digestion, lost appetite, and susceptibility to coughs and colds.

Cooper then told how the faulty methods of living produce rheumatism and kidney complaints. How the body, when the organs falter or fall, fills up with poisons generated by one's own system.

He explained how Tanlac, the miraculous medicine, would combat these conditions, as it had done among the thousands of sufferers in the East, as well as many hundreds in Lexington, who had already used the preparation, and found Tanlac an unfailing source of benefit. "Tanlac," he said, "builds up the constitution weakened by disease and mental and physical overwork, quickens convalescence, and is a sound source of comfort to the aged and infirm."

Tanlac is sold in Cloverport by Wedding's Drug Store, and in Irvington by Irvington Pharmacy.

NEW AIRSHIP DESTROYERS

British Building Machines to Attack German Zeppelins.

London. (Special) British aeroplanes are now equipped with a new kind of bomb suspended from a wire. Running on a reel supplied with a length indicator, this wire can be left out a mile.

When attacking a hostile Zeppelin or aeroplane the aviator circles until he is exactly above the enemy. He attempts to drag his bomb across the hostile craft and thus explode it.

There is an interesting report to the effect that many small rigid dirigibles are being built to make war on German airship. They would play the same part in the air that torpedo boat destroyers on the sea play.
